Friday 1st May 2020

Dear Parents/ carers,

It was wonderful to see all of the Rainbow pictures that the children have made and sent in to the Friends of Rodmarton School. Each week, I will add a selection of them to the newsletter.

Congratulations George!

One of our new pupils, George has been very busy raising funds for Longfield Hospice.

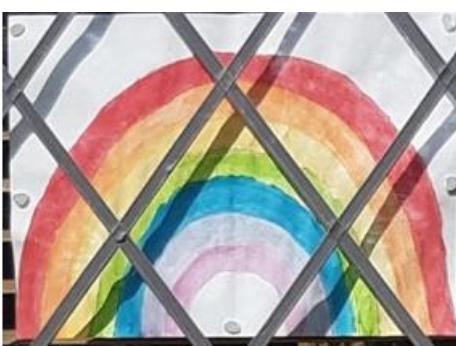

George took part in the Two Point Six Challenge which involved him running an astonishing 2.6 miles in 10 days, equivalent to a marathon! So far, George has raised £1369 with a few more donations due in. The money that George has raised will go towards providing vital funds for Longfield Hospice. Well done George, this is a fantastic achievement.

Pupil Property

We do have items of clothing, lunch boxes, water bottle and other items that the children left at school when we closed. If you know your child has left something behind and you would like to collect it, to ensure we comply with social distancing measures, please contact me to arrange a time when we can leave these items outside the school office.

Keeping in Touch

For those of you who received a telephone call from the school staff this week, I hope you found it useful to ask any questions and talk through the school work. We will continue to make telephone contact with you but we will give priority to those of you who we haven't been in email contact with, seen at school or on the Google video call.

Google Meet/ Hangout

We have started to roll out Google Meet to all the classes. This is a staff led video chat that pupils can access through their Google Classroom account. Teachers will send their pupils an invitation to join a chat at a certain date and time. We ask that parents are present in the room. Please note that this facility means that the children can also contact each other and set up chats. Please make sure that you are supervising your child's use of this.

Congratulations

Last week, I congratulated the Brattel family on the arrival of Emily Elizabeth. It seems that some of you were not able to view the beautiful photos that I had attached. So here they are again! Ethan and Lucy you look so very proud of your new sister!

New competition helps children re-imagine the great outdoors

'See What I See' asks five to 16-year olds to set their imaginations free and re-think their built environment

Prizes up to £600

Competition launched in partnership with Bath Spa University and the Royal Fine Art Commission Trust

A new competition for five to 16-year olds has been launched today to help children feel more connected to the outside world during the coronavirus lockdown.

See What I see, which has been created by the Royal Fine Art Commission Trust (RFACT) in partnership with Bath Spa University, asks children to think about what they miss most about their built environment, how it might be redesigned to bring people together and which place or building they'll visit first once coronavirus restrictions have been lifted.

The competition activities have been designed for different age groups, each with a monetary prize attached (first prize £600, second prize £300 and third prize £100).

- Five to eight-year olds: an opportunity to show their artistic skills and creativity in the form of 3D models, drawings and any other formats they can think of
- Nine to 12-year olds: an opportunity to explore and creatively re-make the world around us by re-imagining their local community and use their imagination to design changes to the environment to make it a better place to live
- 13 to 16-year olds: a category for aspiring designers, those with unlimited imagination and critical eye for detail. Entrants might imagine themselves as an architect, an urban designer or a civil engineer exploring their built environment

Kyriaki Anagnostopoulou, Head of the School of Education at Bath Spa University, said: “Being made to stay indoors can often be associated with punishment for young children, so we wanted to give them something positive to think about that would let their imaginations run wild. At a time when we suddenly find ourselves separated from the outside world, our desire to engage with our environment has become stronger than ever, so this is a perfect opportunity for children to rethink the surroundings that we often take for granted and re-imagine bold, new solutions that inspire new ways of living together.”

Robert Bargery, Executive Director at RFACT, which promotes visual awareness and public appreciation of high-quality design, added: “We want children to use their endless creativity to imagine how they would transform and improve our built environment while we're observing it from the outside in. We hope this competition acts as a helpful resource for teachers and parents to keep their children feeling engaged, happy and creative while the lockdown continues. The opportunities are endless and we can't wait to see the entries as they come in!"

The entries will be judged by a high-profile judging panel comprising the esteemed design critic Stephen Bayley, the famous architect Sir Terry Farrell CBE, the award-winning exhibition designer Dinah Casson CBE and Professor Kyriaki Anagnostopoulou, Head of the School of Education at Bath Spa University.

Judges will be looking for three things: creativity, engagement with surroundings and imaginative design solutions that solve a problem or improve a local area. Winning entries will be showcased in an online gallery on the See What I See website.

The deadline for entries is 30 May 2020.

About Royal Fine Art Commission Trust

- The Royal Fine Art Commission Trust is a registered UK charity that was set up in 1987 to promote design excellence in architecture and the built environment. Over the past thirty years, the Trust has sought to promote visual awareness and public appreciation of high-quality design, for example through educational initiatives, publishing books and occasional papers, organising lectures and seminars and a national architecture award. Today it advances its charitable objectives through commentary on design matters, by undertaking or commissioning relevant research and by partnering projects where its involvement can add value.
